FIT2044 Advanced project level 2 - Semester 2, 2014

This unit introduces students to a variety of topics outside the curriculum, and provides an opportunity to write programs (or, rarely, to build hardware) in an area of interest to the student and the School. The unit operates in an informal manner, and the programming tasks are designed to be interesting and challenging to advanced students. Students will typically meet with their supervisor on a weekly basis and in addition to demonstrating the results of their project, they will also give an oral presentation.

Mode of Delivery

Clayton (Day)

Workload Requirements

Minimum total expected workload equals 2-6 hours per week comprising:

- regular meetings with the supervisor
- depending on the project and the existing knowledge and programming experience of the student
2-6 hrs personal study a week (gaining the required background knowledge, developing and implementing a solution, then writing up the project)

Additional workload requirements

Students must attend a preliminary session to hear about the projects being offered, and attend a final presentation session. During semester, they may have weekly meetings with the supervisor, but the nature and duration of these meetings will be determined by the supervisor and student together.

The amount of work required will vary depending on the project and the existing knowledge and programming experience of the student, however 2-6 hrs personal study a week (gaining the required background knowledge, developing and implementing a solution, then writing up the project) would be a reasonable expectation.

Your feedback to Us

Monash is committed to excellence in education and regularly seeks feedback from students, employers and staff. One of the key formal ways students have to provide feedback is through the Student Evaluation of Teaching and Units (SETU) survey. The University's student evaluation policy requires that every unit is evaluated each year. Students are strongly encouraged to complete the surveys. The feedback is anonymous and provides the Faculty with evidence of aspects that students are satisfied and areas for improvement.

For more information on Monash's educational strategy, see:

www.monash.edu.au/about/monash-directions/ and on student evaluations, see:
www.policy.monash.edu/policy-bank/academic/education/quality/student-evaluation-policy.html

Academic Overview

Learning Outcomes

At the completion of this unit students will:

- understand concepts from several areas of computer science not covered in their normal curriculum;
- know where to find further information on a range of topics on computer programming and computer science;
- understand, from their own experience, some of the difficulties that can arise in larger programming tasks;
- be able to learn new programming languages and tools on their own, without formal instruction;
- be aware of the diverse range of tools that can be used to solve computing problems;
- be aware of the breadth of the computer science discipline;
- have an appreciation of the nature of computer science;
- have skills in using a programming language or technology not covered in their normal curriculum;
- have experience demonstrating a computer program;
- have experience giving an oral presentation of a computing project.

Feedback to you

Examination/other end-of-semester assessment feedback may take the form of feedback classes, provision of sample answers or other group feedback after official results have been published. Please check with your lecturer on the feedback provided and take advantage of this prior to requesting individual consultations with staff. If your unit has an examination, you may request to view your examination script booklet, see

<http://intranet.monash.edu.au/infotech/resources/students/procedures/request-to-view-exam-scripts.html>
